11. This Court has jurisdiction over the parties because they reside, own property, and do business in Horry County, and the actions alleged occurred in Horry County.
12. Venue is proper in this circuit under, inter alia, South Carolina Code § 15-7-30 et seq. because a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to the claim occurred in Horry County.

This lawsuit involves the concerted effort by numerous people to damage the Plaintiff, Justin, including by depriving him of his livelihood, his privacy, his reputation, and his three-year old child. Shockingly, many of the Defendants are in positions of power, which they have wielded to Justin's great detriment.

BACKGROUND FACTS

13. Justin has a little daughter, whom he dearly loves.
14. Justin has spent at least ten years gradually working his way up in the competitive and lucrative oval dirt-track racing industry. Justin got involved in the industry as a child, and it is a link for him to his auto-mechanic father, who died when Justin was 17 years old.
15. Since 2009, Justin has been employed by Palmetto Speedshop, LLC ("Palmetto Speedshop"). Palmetto Speedshop is not a party to this litigation.
16. Justin started out in Palmetto Speedshop's warehouse, handling the shipping and receiving of race car parts, fulfilling purchase orders, and performing general labor. Justin's annual salary for this warehouse position was approximately $30,000/year. (See Exhibit 1, Affidavit of Matthew T. Bryant, incorporated herein by reference).
17. Justin was, and is, an exemplary employee. When Palmetto Speedshop began selecting people to learn driver development coaching, they included Justin in this opportunity. (Id.).
18. In 2017, Justin participated in a year-long training program, after which he was given the position of Palmetto Speedshop's Driver Development Coach. This

- position entailed Justin working with and coaching young drivers, to refine their racing skills. Justin was working with children, ages 6-12 years old, and he was great at it. (Id.).
19. As a Driver Development Coach, Justin earned $107,000/year. (Id.). This was a significant increase over his previous salary in his warehouse position.
 20. This lawsuit is about the damage done to Justin's career, emotional well-being, relationship with his daughter, finances, and reputation in the community, by a group of people acting in concert with intent to harm him, as well as separately, by their individual acts. Because there are so many Defendants involved, and it may get confusing for the reader, Exhibit 2 is a chart of the parties to this lawsuit.
 21. Several years ago, Justin fathered a baby daughter out of wedlock with Defendant Anna Coggeshall ("Anna"). Justin and Anna have a court-ordered custody and child support agreement in place.
 22. Anna does not like Justin.
 23. Anna has been actively working to destroy Justin's reputation, career, and relationship with his little daughter.
 24. But Anna has not been acting alone.

Part 1, The Destruction of Justin's Livelihood and Reputation

25. Defendant Lauren Trent Fulmer ("Lauren") is in the midst of a divorce from Justin. Lauren is predisposed to wish ill against Justin.
26. Lauren and Anna know each other, and they communicate frequently. They are united in their animosity toward Justin.
27. Lauren is a registered nurse practitioner.
28. Lauren is, or was at all times relevant to this action, employed by Defendant SC House Calls, Inc. ("SC House Calls").
29. SC House Calls is a business that acts as a middleman, or broker, between patients and health care providers. SC House Calls provides "a network of over 250 Nurse Practitioners, Physician Assistants, and Doctors who see patients in private residences . . . or via Telemedicine throughout the State of South Carolina." (Exhibit 3, Screenshot of SC House Calls website <https://schousecalls.com/about> , last accessed on October 19, 2021).
30. SC House Calls performs patient intake and scheduling; it then connects patients with its network of healthcare providers. Defendant SC House Calls collects and maintains the confidential health records of its providers' numerous patients, which medical records can be accessed by its network of patient providers at any time. A chart on its website gives an overview of the intake process and the services that SC House Calls provides:

(Ex. 3).

31. Defendant SC House Calls maintains a database, which contains all of its patients' confidential information, including but not limited to its patients' personal and confidential:

- provider treatment charts,
- social histories,
- medical histories,
- records of physician visits,
- results of physical examinations,
- lists of prescription medications,
- family histories,
- sexual histories,
- demographic information,
- screening results,
- problems and concerns,
- test results,
- psychiatric histories,
- assessments,
- evaluations,
- diagnoses, and
- plans for treatment.

32. Justin has been a patient of various providers, through SC House Calls, for several years.

33. SC House Calls maintains within its database confidential information about Justin, which was gained from its providers' healthcare relationship with him over the course of years.
34. As an employee of SC House Calls, Lauren is capable of accessing its database full of confidential patient information.
35. Lauren accessed Justin's confidential information in SC House Calls' database.
36. Justin's confidential information includes his provider treatment charts, social history, medical history, records of physician visits, results of physical examinations, lists of prescription medications, family history, sexual history, demographic information, screening results, problems and concerns, test results, psychiatric history, assessments, evaluations, diagnoses, and plans for treatment (Justin's "Confidential Patient Information").
37. Lauren took this highly personal, sensitive, and confidential information about Justin, and she shared it with Anna.
38. Among other things, Lauren told Anna about medications that Justin was taking, and medications which he had taken in the past. Because Lauren is a nurse practitioner, with medical knowledge, and with access and reference to the Confidential Patient Information, she told Anna about why these medications were prescribed. Lauren gave Anna details about Justin's mental health conditions. Lauren told Anna about the side effects of Justin's prescription medications, including side effects such as potential mania and mood swings, among other things.

39. Lauren told Anna that Justin would need to be on these medications for life, and that they made him too unstable to be around small children. This was false information.
40. Anna took this Confidential Patient Information obtained from Lauren and SC House Calls, and she began to tell people about it.
41. Anna shared Justin's Confidential Patient Information with her parents, Defendants Bryan Coggeshall and Katherine Coggeshall ("Bryan" and "Katie").
42. Defendants Bryan and Katie are well-connected, influential people in the community.
43. Bryan and Katie shared Justin's Confidential Patient Information with members of the community, including parents and relatives of children that Justin coached in his Driver Development position with Palmetto Speedshop.
44. Bryan and Katie told members of the community that Justin was taking drugs.
45. Anna is a first-grade teacher at a local school, and she knows many parents in the community.
46. Anna told parents of the children that Justin coached in his Driver Development position with Palmetto Speedshop that Justin was on drugs that made him unstable.
47. Anna told other people in the community, including those involved in the racing industry, that Justin was on drugs that made him unstable.

48. Anna also told local parents, and other members of the community, that Justin was physically abusive. This is untrue.
49. The rumors spread.
50. Community parents, having learned of Justin's Confidential Patient Information from Anna, Bryan, and Katie, began to go to Justin's boss at Palmetto Speedshop and express their concerns about Justin's purported drug use and instability. (Ex. 1).
51. Anna, Bryan, and Katie had spread these sorts of rumors about Justin before, but the rumors were given new life, credibility, and urgency by Lauren's dissemination of Justin's Confidential Patient Information, which she accessed through the SC House Calls database.
52. The concerned parents, who were the customers of Palmetto Speedshop, were worried about Justin being around young children due to concerns related to the Confidential Patient Information that they had learned from Anna, Bryan, and Katie, as well as the lies about physical abuse.
53. Because the parents of the young children coached by Justin were so worried, Justin's boss at Palmetto Speedshop felt that he had no choice but to remove Justin from his position as a Driver Development Coach and return him to his warehouse position, although he nonetheless believed Justin to be an exemplary employee. (Ex. 1).
54. Palmetto Speedshop reduced Justin's annual salary to $38,000—a massive reduction from the $107,000/year that he was earning as a coach. (Ex. 1).

55. Justin has been financially and emotionally devastated, as well as mortified, by the disclosure of his Confidential Patient Information by Defendants Lauren and SC House Calls.
56. Justin has been financially and emotionally devastated by the rumors circulated about him by Anna, Bryan, and Katie, which were fueled by Confidential Patient Information improperly divulged by Lauren and SC House Calls.
57. The unauthorized and improper disclosure of Justin's Confidential Patient Information by the Defendants has destroyed Justin's reputation within the community, such that it will be very difficult—or impossible—for Justin to return to his career as a youth coach.

Part 2, The Destruction of Justin's Relationship with his Child

58. The allegations above and below are repeated herein verbatim.
59. As the reader may recall, Justin has a little three-year-old daughter with Defendant Anna, although he and Anna were never married.
60. Several years ago, Justin and Anna litigated and received a court-ordered Child Custody and Child Support Agreement.
61. Family Court litigation is expensive, time consuming, and emotionally taxing, and Justin was relieved, mentally and financially, when a final order and agreement were in place.
62. Anna was represented in the Family Court case by an attorney named Melissa Frazier, Esq., of Defendant Frazier Law Firm, P.C.

63. The judge who presided over the case and entered the Final Order was the Honorable Jan B. Bromell Holmes. She is not a party to this litigation.
64. For over a year, Justin and Anna harmoniously abided by the terms of the Final Order.
65. But, in or around the summer of 2021, Anna learned from Lauren about Justin's Confidential Patient Information stored within the SC House Calls database.
66. At that time, Lauren was in the beginning stages of divorce from Justin, which Anna encouraged. Anna told Lauren, as well as Lauren's family, that Justin was a terrible person.
67. Lauren told Anna, based on the Confidential Patient Information she accessed within the SC House Calls patient database, that Justin was too unstable to care for a child.
68. Anna told Lauren that she wanted to reduce Justin's visitation rights with his daughter. Anna and Lauren agreed that now was a good time to do so, since Justin was not in a position to afford a lawyer (because, among other things, they had caused Justin to lose his hard-won position as a Driver Development Coach). They strategized, planning to wait on him to run low on money and then hit him with a legal attack that he could not afford.
69. Anna talked to her parents, Defendants Bryan and Katie, about her desire to deprive Justin of visitation rights with his little girl.
70. Defendants Bryan and Katie dislike Justin.

71. Bryan, Katie, and Anna developed a plan to curtail Justin’s visitation rights. But they could not accomplish their plan alone.
72. Bryan is friends with Defendant Thomas Buckhannon (“Tommy”). Tommy is an officer with the South Carolina Department of Natural Resources (“SCDNR”), and Bryan is an avid boater.
73. Tommy is married to Defendant the Honorable Melissa Emery Buckhannon (“Judge Buckhannon”).
74. Judge Buckhannon is a resident Family Court Judge for Horry County.
75. Bryan and Katie had numerous conversations with Tommy about Justin, in which they told Tommy, falsely, that Justin was a bad parent who was violating his child custody agreement with Anna. Bryan and Katie told Tommy these – and numerous other falsehoods about Justin – with a design to defame Justin in the eyes of Tommy and Judge Buckhannon.
76. On several occasions, Bryan and Katie urged Tommy to talk to his wife, Judge Buckhannon. Bryan and Katie asked Tommy to have Judge Buckhannon intervene on Anna’s behalf within the Family Court system, and to help reduce or deprive Justin of his visitation rights.
77. Tommy assured Bryan and Katie that he would get Judge Buckhannon involved.
78. This is where the narrative should have stopped. Judge Buckhannon should not have entertained any information at all from Tommy, Bryan, or Katie about a Family Court case.

79. But Judge Buckhannon listened to Tommy talk at length about Justin and Anna. Tommy conveyed to her false information about Justin's violation of his child custody agreement, and his unfitness to parent the child.
80. Judge Buckhannon should not have acted on this information.
81. But Judge Buckhannon called up attorney Melissa Frazier of Defendant Frazier Law Firm, whom Judge Buckhannon knew represented Anna in her Family Court litigation against Justin.
82. Frazier Law Firm had nearly closed its file on the matter because Judge Jan Bromell Holmes had issued her Final Order over a year prior.
83. Judge Buckhannon told Frazier Law Firm numerous false details about Justin, including that Justin was violating his custody agreement with Anna. Among other advice, Judge Buckhannon urged Frazier Law Firm to return to court on Anna's behalf.
84. Judge Buckhannon's conversations with attorney Melissa M. Frazier, Esq., of Frazier Law Firm were highly inappropriate ex parte communications, and they per se caused Justin harm.
85. Frazier Law Firm knew that it should not engage in highly inappropriate ex parte communications with Judge Buckhannon, or with any judge whatsoever.
86. But Frazier Law Firm disregarded its ethical obligations. Instead, Frazier Law Firm chose to act to gain an unfair advantage for itself in its representation of Anna, to the detriment of Justin.

87. Among other things, Frazier Law Firm called up Anna and advised her that her father, Bryan, should not talk too much with Tommy and Judge Buckhannon, because then Frazier Law Firm and Anna might not be able to appear before Judge Buckhannon in court. Frazier Law Firm explained that this would be bad, because they might instead get a “bad judge” (like Judge Bromell Holmes, who entered the previous order), or an unknown visiting judge.
88. With the encouragement of Judge Buckhannon, who was acting at the urging of her husband Tommy, as well as Anna’s parents Bryan and Katie, Frazier Law Firm prepared to return to court to recommence litigation on Justin and Anna’s Final Order and Custody Agreement. Frazier Law Firm sent a letter to Justin in anticipation of this litigation.
89. Justin had no choice but to retain an attorney to defend against new and untrue allegations. This has been to his financial detriment.
90. Justin now worries constantly that he will lose his rights to see his little girl.
91. On his lesser salary, Justin worries constantly that he will face penalties if he cannot pay child support.
92. Justin is devastated to know that a Family Court Judge would intervene to assist a single party in a custody battle.
93. Justin is shocked and deeply unsettled to learn that Frazier Law Firm would act to keep secret its client’s advantageous relationship with a judge, and its own ex parte communications with that judge.

94. Because of Judge Buckhannon's and Frazier Law Firm's actions, Justin is now suspicious and untrusting of the Family Court system, and he has lost faith that it will fairly and impartially interpret and apply the law.
95. Justin has been experiencing, and continues to endure, extreme emotional and financial distress because of the Defendants' actions.
96. Justin's distress is taking an enormous mental and physical toll on him.

AFFIDAVIT OF MATTHEW THOMAS BRYANT

PERSONALLY APPEARED BEFORE ME, Matthew Thomas Bryant, who, after being duly sworn, deposes and states, under penalty of perjury:

1. My name is Matthew Thomas Bryant and I am the owner of Palmetto Speedshop, LLC, located in Conway, South Carolina. I have owned this business for 18 years. We service the dirt oval racing industry. My company sells parts, offers in-shop and at-track services.
2. Justin Fulmer began working for me in 2009 as warehouse manager with a salary of approximately 30,000.00 per year. His duties included shipping and receiving, purchase orders, and general labor. I knew Justin through the industry prior to my hiring him and had very good references.
3. In 2017, my company invested a substantial amount of money to learn driver development and coaching, which means we would be at race tracks coaching young drivers to refine their driving skills. A driver development coach works directly with drivers (ranging from ages 6-12) and mechanics (who are generally parents of the drivers). This issue has affected the income and profits of the company.
4. It took one year to learn the trade. In 2018, Justin began working with different teams and his salary was increased based on the customer base.
5. In 2019, Shane Mills, who, among many people, heard of the allegations from Bryan and Katherine Coggeshall, came to me and told me that he had heard that Justin was using drugs. I told him, and anyone else that brought this up, that Justin was not using drugs and for them not to worry about that. Customers were concerned because Justin worked closely with them and
