Hi y'all,

Dr. SHH reached out to me today. She would like to contact a school librarian who is subversively (or discretely), or even quietly working to support their LGBTQIA+ students while working in a conservative/ oppressive environment. She wants to have this person speak to her students as a guest, addressing the importance of this work and how it can be done despite one's fear or discomfort. Does anyone come to your mind who you believe is doing this? I was thinking of Greer Kelly (who replaced Cynthia at Longleaf Middle), as one, but would love to hear your fantastic ideas!

Lucy
